

I oppose any limits on the ability of satellite broadcasters to disseminate timely traffic and weather information. The freedom to broadcast and the freedom to have available all information seems to be inherent in the First Amendment. Limiting information sources reeks of censorship. The large media conglomerates that already control most of the FM spectrum in my area leave little choice on content or variety of information. As a paying subscriber, I by choice, do not wish to limit my listening options to one or two "open air" commercial broadcasters.
